EDITORIAL INTRODUCTION AND IMPORTANT INFO!

As some of you are well aware, Craig Isidetter has opted to re-sell his editors' shoes and foolishly allowed me to oversee his prestigious publication, HI-TECH TERROR! Poor Craig, I led him down a rocky path making him believe I'd do as fine a job as he's been doing the past thirteen editions! With a gullible chap. By the way, did you know they took the word "gullible" out of the dictionary? Yeah, it's true ... Go ahead, look it up!

With all that falderal out the way, I'm Tim Ferrante! Craig Isidetter has entrusted me to continue with his terrific 'zine while he cools his jets. Craig is hardly out of the picture, and you. He will still (and this is IMPORTANT!) handle the subscription renewal notices and collect the money. He's also promised to have a review in each issue until he decides to climb back into the drivers seat as full-time editor! However, all reviews, letters of comment or threat, ads, mags, guests and "zine plugs should be sent to me at the address above. Of course you sure can write to Craig, but thanks for publications go to me for the time being!

Just in case any one of you characters are wondering, "hey, who is this Ferrante clown?" I'll be brief ... I've known Craig for a few years now and we've spoken on the phone many times. I assure you, he's a gentleman on all counts. Having tossed him a few reviews in past issues, I hated to see this 'zine fold ... I really enjoyed reading everyone's work! After some mild arm-twisting, he conceded to let me carry the ball. I've written for various fan publications as well as FANZINEA. I work in the entertainment industry and am part of DWGONE, INC. (see the enclosed flyer for our latest book!) If my reader is searching for one of the books we publish, please feel free to write me. Our books are BEZARD (formerly CRAMIE BLISS-HOME) by Tom Swinn, DRUGISM IN THE FANTASY CINEMA by Bill George (this book was previously sold-out but we've had it reprinted and copies are now IN STOCK!), DICK SMITHS MONSTER MAKE-UP BOOK by Dick Smith, THE COMPLETE NOODS OF THE LIVING DEAD FILMBOOK by John Russo and HORROR J ACKERMAN: PAROUS MONSTER OF FILMBOOK by Forey! Moreover, any books published by DWGONE, INC. can be directly obtained from me at the above address! Or simply send your order to the Pittsburgh address as shown on the flyer. Enough plugs for the company ... How did my ben segue into a commercial?!

CORRECTION: Way back in H-T #6, MICKIE DEARD topped Raymond Young wrote a review on a vid title, AMOS. He stated that it was a hybrid made-for-TV book. Correct on two counts, it was a book and certainly made for TV! The pic did air under the title of IT HAPPENED AT LATE WOOD MANSION on the ABC Network. It later resurfaced as PWING AT LATE WOOD MANSION. This is just a bit of info I thought needed updating.

Plus, I publish a bi-monthly tabloid covering the much-maligned genre of Italian Westerns. It's called WESTERN ... ALL*ITALIAN! and some of the H-T folks reading this now are subscribers. Isn't that right Keith, Bill, Michael, Donald, Lindsey and others? For additional info, please write me.

Lastly, (We seem to be making a finally great shakedown!) the format and page count of this 'zine may vary as much as it did make a long version. I think we'll pretty much keep the wrap-around full time routine and avoid costly envelopes. Perhaps this will help to up the page count! You'll also notice that the back 3 page will be set aside for reader ads, letters or messages at request. If nothing comes in, then new will be slotted there.

BLOOD CORPS by Craig Joseph.
(1973) VHS Video. $59.95

What a shame WJ decided to release the butchered version of GARJA AND HESS. While gore fans are rejoicing over that extra minute of depravity added to LAST HOUSE ON THE LEFT, fans of quality low-budget horror have to wonder what happened to 27 minutes of plot contained in the film's original version. Thank God the tape distributors didn't get ahold of the film when it went under the moniker DOUBLE HUSBANDS, as another 5 minutes were hacked out under that title!

Duane Jones (the excellent black actor from NIGHT OF THE LIVING DEAD) is Hess, an expert in Nigerian culture. He is studying the Myrthians, and offshoot cult who believed in the life extending properties of drinking blood. Taking on an assistant George Mader, who just happens to be a suicidally prone schizophrenic, they begin their study. Mader attacks and kills (or so he thinks) Hess by using an ancient knife which just so happens to be diseased, thus infecting Hess with the desire to drink human blood. All of this is very confusing (due no doubt to the missing footage) and this confusion stays throughout the film. Eventually Mader's wife Garja arrives on the scene and is brought into the vampire fold. The ending is so badly edited, I couldn't begin to explain it!

I saw the complete film years ago and was impressed. In its original form, it represented the finest blaxploitation/horror film made. The original director/writer Bill Gunn fortunately had his name removed from this version (a misread read F.L. Novikov is credited). I definitely recommend you NOT rent this version.

NOT FOR THE FAINT-HEARTED!
MONDO MAGIC

MONDO MAGIC by Tim Ferrante.
Hagman Video, One-half of their Shock Box. $39.95 single price.

MONDO MAGIC is Hagman Videos lesser half of a duo release known as The Shock Box. Paired with SHOCKING ASIA, the set retails at $79.95. Pic is yet another Italian backed gut-spiller that parallels it's predecessors such as SAVAGE MAN, SAVAGE BEAST and SAVAGE AND SAVAGE. Poorly mounted docu-footage wastes much time lingering on slasher-inducing tribal dances and rituals that the few moments of accu-gore are barely worth the wait. Merely a wolf-in-sheep-clothing, MONDO MAGIC hardly deserves the space here. Nice musical score but two-compared are probably so used to batoning these entrail tests that any musical approach will suffice. SKIP CITY !!!

MACABE by Donald Famer.
Might Communications. $39.95

spotting this title on the video shelf recently, I had to take a closer look. It couldn't be that Stuart Whitman/crawling hand pic known alternately as MACABE or DIMENSION, and I doubted it was William Castle's PSE MACABE starring the always horrifying Jim Backus. I knew better than to hope it might be Umberto Lenzi's yet-to-be-released MACABED. Anyway, two hours later and two looks poorer I can report that MACABE is the video release title of an infernably dreary, Italian potboiler about a bored wife who won't screw boyfriend till he promises to kill her husband (who's his identical twin!) This time-waster has been packaged to look like a horror movie so suckers like me would rent it. Don't let this happen to you! Steer clear of MACABE!

SUBMATHIM, by Jeff Smith.
$69.95

There's one good thing about an anthology title: if you get stuck with a dull plot you can at least say to yourself, "Well, maybe the next one will be better." Back to one such delusion for SUBMATHIM, a dreary trilogy of tales which, despite the presence of the "M" kind and one graphic throat-slashing, seem to be episodes of some British

AT RIGHT: The sexy bloodthirsty beauty Hilary Lapton, star of THE SHATTER TIMES editor/vid-maker's new got-blunder - CANNIBAL HEARDERS.

Donald Famer sent this gussy still along as a special sneak peek for B-TF readers. I can clearly see two fine reasons why I'll be looking forward to this made-for-home-video shocker! Alto boy, Donald ! !

WARM BLOOD
ISN'T ALL THEY SUCK!

TV horror program, linked together by what has to be the worst-acted teasing device of all time. We'll not mention the fact that it's set in a slummy section of New York, where the accounts clash with the "wacky British" episodes. Only one of the episodes is even remotely entertaining. In it, a young couple move into a new home and the wife begins having hallucinations in which a crazed maniac slaughters an entire family. In a fairly decent twist ending, we find that these were not hallucinations from the past but premonitions of the future, as her husband is killed by the maniac in the final scene. Still, the building to this is an lethargic and drawn-out that any twist would have been welcome. The first and third episodes concerning, respectively, a sinister puppeteer and garden games which come to life, manage to be both dull and dumb. Another case of vicious boredom in its extreme stages. Stay away!

HOSPITAL OF TERROR by Kris Galpin.
Super Video $50.95

A recent Al Adamson-directed (SADOM'S SADISTS, DRACULA VS. FRANKENSTEIN) vid offering is HOSPITAL OF TERROR. Theatrically released as NURSE SIBBELL and popping up on local tv as BEYOND THE LIVING (Also titled KILLERS CURSE in many foreign markets. - Yip F.) it is appropriately titled as the story of a dead con man whose spirit literally enters the body of a nurse who works there. This happens when the devil-worshipping con man's spirit, now in the form of a glittering, animated green cloud, rapes the nurse in her bed one night. The green non-mass actually giggles while it does its dirty deed. Needless to say, the hospital employee then proceeds to perform exorcisms, such as puncturing a flamer with a pitchfork. There is a black, blinded football player, who is a patient in the title hospital, that develops a psychic link with the nurses rampages; and everyone in the cast got screwed (including the viewer -- yuk yuk).

With typical dumb acting and stock musical stings which are so melodramatic they are hysterical, HOSPITAL OF TERROR looks as though most of it was edited in the camera, causing it to move along like a B.G. Lewis epic. Just is also filled with a car chase and redundant, unnecessary flashbacks to old events in the film. However, due to its super-cheapo style and those outrageous music stings, this tape is good for a couple of laughs.

Al Adamson strikes again -- if you've avoured his previous schlock, it's worth a look!

LAND OF THE MINOTAUR by David Dodge.
United Home Video $49.95

Now before any of our less sensitive readers start hollering "Land of the Soy-Suit?", the Minotaur was the half man/half bull result of a heavily cross-breeding between a King's wife and a bull once intended for sacrifice due to the indignance of spiteful Greek gods, whose deities later provided an annual sacrifice of young ones to the monstrous offspring.

In this Greek production, the bull-headed demigod appears in the form of a fire-breathing statue who communicates telepathically while Peter Onofri does all the dirty work with the aid of local villagers. Donald Pleasence portrays a priest who's usually clumsy with some hippie archeology students, and not only that, has a private-eye friend while no time flying over (and the statues to investigate his young friends' disappearance. Father Son isn't helped by any historical precedent - to him it's all a peccadewus sideline for Satanas mischief, which is no doubt why Arthur Rowe's script leaves no lucky charm cult cliché unturned. The production compliments the screenplay with all too familiar sacrificial altar scenes, costumes and even a bit of poor day for night shooting alternating with shots occurring in the darkest night.

Although the demise of Padre Planchon is depicted in the telepathic imaginings of the sedentary title character, he saves the day with plenty of crucifix swinging and pious chanting which has the slaughter-happy social cladders bursting into fiery chaos.

I've read of this feature once carrying an R rating and containing a bit of sex, don't expect any from this PG rated cassette. I would've loved to see the Minotaur breakfast of that statuesque pope and do something real kinky with those horns.

THE BIG DOLL HOUSE by Raymond Young.
Embassy Home Video $59.95

Seldom dull, this entertaining women's-jungle-prison story was co-produced by John Ashley and Eddie "Blood Island" Romero. Zero budget and Philippine locales provide backdrop to tale of man-starved cunts subjected to a warden's nasty rehab program (shock therapy, torture, etc...) when they're not fighting one another. Venomous snakes, heroin junkies, cockroach races, mud wrestling, food fights and dirty language serve as character development in writer/director Jack Hill's boxoffice smash that led to THE BIG BIRD CAGE and a whole new breed of women's prison flick from Roger Corman's New World Pictures. A lot of fun despite its flaws. Judy Brown, Roberta Collins, Pam Grier. (Can anyone explain why the MGM logo is on this videocassette?) [The only connection I can readily supply between this New World Release and MGM is the fact that MGM Intl. processed the film TV spots as well as several other N.W. pictures during this early 70's period. - Tim F.]

THE BURNING MAN by Jeff Smith.
Crest Video $29.95

With only four scenes of what could remotely be called bloodletting, I could hardly dub this B.C. Lewis dir. a "porn" film, and since gore content is usually the only thing of interest in an B.C. film, I found THE BURNING MAN's pretty tepid. The premise - a spooky Civil War-type village in which the "Gentlemen" are calculated via blood sacrifices - is set up in the first five minutes and yet it wanders around for an eter-

HI-TECH ATROCITIES

Word has it that Wizard Video - that neat offshoot of Empire Pictures - may be having tough times. With their mealticket Vestron Video expanding and deepening the flow of red ink in their ledger books, Good ol' Charlie Band might not be able to cram just any tired import down Vestron's jugular. The month of June was "Wizard Video Sale Month" for many video retailers. The usual $59.95 list product was being blown-out at $29.95 to stimulate a sell-thru market for the line. Warehouse stock is still abundant on many of the titles and this one month only sale was an effort to generate some fast cash.||||Keep an eyeball sighted on those Media Home Entertainment horror titles. They've knocked down suggested retail on many of thier hot titles to $19.95! HALLOWEEN and A NIGHTMARE ON ELM STREET join the ranks of affordable pre-records.||||Super Video, those boffo exec's responsible for the release of genre gems as DRACULA VS.
